

Iqbal. A.Ansari

HUMAN RIGHTS IN INDIA SOME ISSUES

The present volume is an attempt to focus attention on some key human rights issues related to some systemic reforms like the police and judiciary and effective protection of the rights of disadvantaged and vulnerable groups. It brings under critical scrutiny the judiciary, which in spite of its selective activism in making fundamental rights more meaningful in facing what Justice (Retd) V.R. Krishna Iyer calls an imminent breakdown of the system. A discussion of the National Police Commission's Report underlines the vital need for a complete reorganisation of the Police for democratic governance.

The book takes note of increasing realisation of people's right to information which according to Justice (Retd) V.M. Tarkunde is a basic tenet of democracy. The other side of the coin, i.e. the people's right to privacy and reputation also receives full examination.

Among the vulnerable groups, contributors have examined the inadequacy of legislation of Women, the condition of the Christian minority and Bohras and hitherto neglected areas of the rights of the elderly. The book devotes two chapters on Human Rights Education whose importance is being increasingly realised in the country.

In the section on Appendices the book includes useful texts of the draft bills on right to information and some of the Amnesty International's Reports on India and Stockholm Plane of Action Against Torture.

The contributors to the volume include:

Justice V.R. Krishna Iyer, Justice V.M. Tarkunde, Justice H.R. Khanna, Justice Jayachandra Reddy, Justice S.M. Daud, Mr. P.P. Rao, Dr James Massey, Mr. Asghar Ali Engineer, Ms Gauri Bajaj Malik, Dr. RM Pal, Prof Yogesh Tayagi, Dr. Ajay Mehra, Mr. S.A.H. Rizvi, Prof Rasheeduz Zafar and Dr. Faizan Mustafa.

The Author: Preface, Introduction, Human Rights Situation in India: An Overview (Iqbal A Ansari) Justice, justice and Justicing (VR Krishna Iyer) Emergency Constitutional and Legal Issues (HR Khanna) Some Aspects of Delay and Miscarriage of Justice (SM Daud) Judiciary and Protection of Human Rights (PP Rao) Capital Punishment in India Away from Abolition, Closer to Retention (Faizan Mustafa) The National Police Commission: Importance and Relevance (Ajay K Mehta) UN Convention Against Torture and Role of the NHRC (S Ameenul Hasan Rizvi) Right to Information (VM Tarkunde) Defamation, Libel and the Media (Mohammad Rasheeduz Zafar) Offences Against Women and Recent Legislative Changes (Gauri Jayachandra Reddy) Status of the Elderly in India Promotion of their Human rights (Gauri Bazaz Malik) Safeguard of Minority rights in the Indian Constitution With Special Reference to Christian (James Massey) Intra-Community Violations of Rights The Bohra Case (Asghar Ali Engineer) Human Rights Education in India Some Reflections (Yogesh K Tayagi) Human Rights Education : India's Heritage (RM Pal)

Appendices: Appendix I Freedom of Information Bill, 1997 Appendix II Right to Information Bill 1996 Appendix III The Constitution (Schedule Caste) Orders (Amendment) Act 1990 Appendix IV Amnesty International Observation on Violation of Rights in India : Pattern and Sources Appendix V India's third Report to the UN Human Rights Committee and Amnesty's Proposal for improving the situation in the Country Appendix VI Amnesty international's Memorandum on the Police Procedure & Practices in India and Bombay riots 1992-1993 Appendix VII Stockholm Plan of Action Against Torture 1996 Appendix VII Extract on India from the 1997 Annual Report of the UN special Rapporteur on Torture

The Editor: Iqbal A. Ansari (b. 1935) joined the Aligarh Muslim University in 1962 and retired from there as Professor of English in 1995. His publications include the following books: The Muslim Situation in India (Sterling 1989) Readings on Minorities: Perspectives and Documents Volume I & II (Institute of Objective Studies New Delhi 1996) Communal Riots, the State and Law in India, (Minorities Council of India, New Delhi 1997) Prof. Ansari has contributed a large number of articles on human rights, minorities, Muslims and Islam to books, journals and newspapers. His forthcoming book deals with inter-group violence and the role of law enforcement agencies in India.

Since 1977 Prof. Ansari has been actively associated with the Human Rights movement. In 1990 he founded with Justice (Retired) V.M. Tarkunde the Coordination Committee on Kashmir to monitor human rights situation and to promote dialogue on Kashmir. He is also the founder Secretary-General of the Minorities Council of India, which seeks to secure justice for minorities and their peaceful coexistence with the majority.

Back

PRICE : INRs 175

PAGES: 210