Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI)

The Corruption Perceptions Index (CPI) aggregates data from a number of different sources that provide perceptions among businesspeople and country experts of the level of corruption in the public sector. It relies on 13 independent data sources and uses a scale of zero to 100, where zero is highly corrupt and 100 is very clean.

The CPI is published annually by the Transparency International, a non-governmental organisation, since 1995. The CPI generally defines Corruption as an 'Abuse of entrusted power for Private Gain'.

Happiness Index

The Happiness Index (The World Happiness Report) is the world's foremost publication on global well-being and how to improve it, published by the University of Oxford's Well-being Research Centre in partnership with Gallup, the UN Sustainable Development Solution Network and an independent editorial board. The well-being data from over 140 countries is collected, using a life evaluation survey, often employing the Cantril Ladder method, in conjunction with six key factors — GDP per capita, social support, healthy life expectancy, freedom to make life choices, generosity and perceptions of corruption.
